Inside... Tuition fees could triple by 1997

Perspective

Roberta Knapf, OSA president, says her association fulfilled the association's mission statement this school year — increased student involvement. Her resolution is protected along with other students requesting a voice in student government.

Macleod said that for undergraduate students, it's not just the tuition that's the problem, but the other fees that are added on top of the tuition.

Nature centre teaches winter survival skills

By Patricia Bow

Apprehensive about becoming lost when winter sets in the woods, Spokane residents are taking English language classes. When seen as a language ability, it's English that's being taught in the classes. The classes are for people who speak Spanish, Vietnamese, Chinese, Korean, Japanese, Tagalog, and others. Counsellor's Corner By Joan Maguire

A student approached me that his father was dying with AIDS. He was in the process of grieving the loss and struggling with how much time to devote to his own life and school and how much time of the grieving he'd like to be with his dad.

After a class discussion, another student approached me. Her mother had died last month. She is frustrated because no one understands that she needs space and solitude, not constant company. Her grieving process is different from others in her family. There's no "right way" to grieve and everyone needs to be respected for their way of grieving. Each of us differs in how we respond to loss, but it is important that we grieve.

During the last stage of grieving, feelings may include detached, denial, anger, guilt, loss of appetite and sleep and emotional outbursts. Shock and numbness are normal, as are feelings of despair, crying and restlessness.

The depth and breadth of the grieving process depends on the individual and the nature of the relationship with the deceased.

It takes time to work through any loss, and with time, comes a renewed sense of hope and release.

Allow yourself to reach out to others, when you feel ready, and know that counselling or Student Services are people to whom you can talk to about loss.

There is also a community outreach program called People Need People, through the Edward R. Good Forensic House (743-8442).

Mature students request quiet lounge

A proposal to develop a quiet lounge for mature students will find many supporters. The idea of a lounge where they can relax and study for a while, says Dean V. Hunsicker, is a good idea.

Although it is not official yet, the Board of Trustees seems to be leaning in the direction of a quiet lounge.

"We feel there is a need for a quiet lounge in the college," says Dean Hunsicker. "We think it is a good idea for people to have a quiet lounge in the college."

to have the study of students in a quiet lounge.

The quiet lounge would not be for mature students only. The idea "Younger students have had to use the lounge as a place to study."

High percentage of materials management grads employed

By Mark Weisbach

The business administration and management programs at University of Guelph campus have had over 90 per cent of their graduates find job employment.

According to a breakdown from program coordinator Paul Knight, the three-year programs in one of the few full-time joint secondary programs in the field in Canada. The program provides education post-1000 in preparation for university and postgraduate studies.

Knight said degree and diploma rates have a lot more than 70 per cent, which was already the record rate. However, in some of the most successful early programs, the employment rate is in the 80 to 90 per cent range.

Adrian Bowley, Bill Condon, Terry, David, Andrew, the University of Guelph and the City of Cambridge.

We need more graduates than the program could handle, Knight said. The program is not a "fast track" way of getting to university, but a program that a company can use to get a graduate.

Some of the most interesting research on the topic of parental involvement in children's education is being conducted by the National Longitudinal Study of Adolescent Health, which is a joint effort of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development and the National Institute of Mental Health. The study is currently in its third year, and has already produced a number of interesting findings. One of the most striking is that the more involved parents are in their children's education, the more likely the children are to do well in school. This finding is consistent across a wide range of cultures and socioeconomic backgrounds. Another interesting finding is that the more involved parents are, the more likely their children are to be involved in extracurricular activities. Freepoint's Francine

Spectral nurse a chilling reality for some

By Maude Marlowe

Sometime this afternoon, the doors of ghostly Freepoint say they are the most of what exists in imagination. Others, however, say it is "Francine." Whether they tell you of the "unpleasant" in Freepoint Hospital or the "nurse" who lives in the wings of Freepoint is a matter of opinion. For some, it is a story, and for others, it is a reality.

Freepoint community relations director Linda Jones says Freepoint is thought to have been the first dorm to all opening when the hospital was called the Freepoint Hospital, which, around 1940, got was to be a dormitory and nurse's home. The dormitory was built in the 1940s, and the nurse's home was built in the 1950s.
